Educators have a visible place in their communities. The choices they make, even when well-intended, can affect their families, jobs, schools and profession. The Ohio Department of Education, Ohio Education Association and Ohio Federation of Teachers offer this series of tip sheets supported by BASA, OASSA and OAESA on how to recognize situations which can get good educators in trouble.

Most educators carry smart phones that give them photo, video and texting opportunities and the instant ability to post, like or snap. But these social media opportunities can blur the line between work and personal life.

Be smarter than your smart phone

Tip 1: Remember, the Licensure Code of Professional Conduct for Ohio Educators applies all day, every day, even to your personal social media accounts. If someone would have a problem with your planned post, it could mean a problem for you.

Tip 2: Privacy settings don't guarantee privacy, but using maximum settings may lower your risk. If you use social media platforms such as Facebook or Twitter, have two accounts for each:

Professional account – Post content only for students, parents, administrators and the school community. No party pictures or pet stories here.

Personal account – Post content only for friends and family, and use maximum privacy settings that block your posts from students, parents and the school community. Keep in mind that someone still could print, copy or take a screenshot of your post.

Tip 3: Remember, if a comment or photo is inappropriate in the school or classroom, it's inappropriate on social media.

Understanding the Educator Discipline Process

5 Resolution

Once the investigation is complete, there are several possible resolutions:

Non-Disciplinary—The case closes with no disciplinary action against the educator. Minimum time to notify the educator: three-five days

Letter of Admonishment—The educator receives a written reprimand that is public record. Minimum time to develop and receive a letter of admonishment signed by the educator: Two-four weeks

Automatic Revocation—For criminal convictions, such as sexual battery, robbery or drug trafficking, the educator permanently loses his or her license. Minimum time to notify the educator: One-two days

Voluntary Surrender—The educator gives up his or her license voluntarily and permanently. Minimum time for the State Board of Education to accept a voluntary surrender: 6-8 weeks

Consent Agreement—The educator enters a legal agreement with the Ohio Department of Education outlining terms for keeping his or her license. Office of Professional Conduct staff monitor the educator for one to three years to ensure the educator is following the terms of the agreement. Minimum time to develop and negotiate a consent agreement: Two-four months

Due Process Hearings—The educator exercises his right to an impartial hearing in front of a hearing officer who examines the facts of the investigation. The hearing officer reports the findings to the State Board of Education. The hearing officer also recommends how the State Board should discipline the educator. The hearing officer may recommend no disciplinary action. Minimum time from the beginning of the hearing process to a State Board decision: Six months
