Dear Parents:

You are the most important advocate for the quality of educational services your student receives. Based on feedback provided to the Ohio Department of Education (ODE), we have made substantial changes to the report card so you will have the information you need to be more involved in your child's learning. These changes include:

- We have provided more information on your child's school and reduced the amount of district-level information;
- The format of the report card has been changed to make it easier to understand;
- As requested, key questions on your school's safety record have been included; and
- To help you better understand the performance numbers in your child's school, we have provided new sections that break down proficiency by specific groups of students.

Additional information can be found on the ODE website. Please call 877-772-7771 if you would like more information sent to you or if you have comments on the changes to the report card.

Safety and Resources

Your School's Safety and Discipline Record

School safety is a concern for every parent. The State of Ohio requires that a district collect information on the safety record of its schools. Detailed district suspension and expulsion information is available from your district office or can be accessed through the internet at www.ode.state.oh.us.

Although expulsion and suspension numbers provide an important piece of information about school safety, they cannot provide a complete picture of all of the variables that make a school safe and drug-free. After you review the district discipline information, you might want to discuss the following questions with school personnel:

- How does your child's school create a caring and supportive learning environment that fosters positive relationships between students and school personnel?
- What types of positive classroom and building discipline approaches are implemented to both promote desired behavior and address problems as early as possible?
- What are the various disciplinary approaches, such as an in-school suspension class, utilized by your school in working with specific student behaviors?
- Does your child's school have a comprehensive school safety plan in place that addresses a variety of crises that could occur such as a weather related emergency or an intruder in the building?
- Has your school or district formed a community task force or coalition with strong parent representation that promotes positive youth development and addresses safety issues specific to your school and community?
- Has your school implemented a student assistance program that addresses learning, emotional and behavioral problems that impact learning?
- How does your school and district make use of resources provided through the Safe and Drug-Free Schools and Communities Act grant that is available to each district in Ohio?
- Does your school use both internal and external support personnel such as counselors and social workers to provide assistance to students?

Your Child's Test Results

Information You Need to Know as a Parent

The Ohio General Assembly passed new legislation in spring 2001 calling for:

- New testing programs for Ohio students, and
- New accountability standards for school buildings, in addition to existing accountability standards for school districts.

These two initiatives will be phased-in over the next eight years. Ohio's Local Report Cards were redesigned to provide detailed information on a school, its students and their performance on Ohio's Proficiency Tests. Students are tested so parents and teachers can understand where a student has strengths and weaknesses in learning outcomes. Every student will have both strengths and weaknesses in subjects being tested. With testing information, parents and teachers can work together to improve a student's knowledge and skills. Knowledge and skills are important to your child's ability to advance from grade to grade, and eventually to graduate from high school.

Receiving Test Results

Every parent whose child is taking the Ohio Proficiency Tests in March 2002 as an 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th or 12th grader is supposed to receive a report of their child's results. These results will become available at the end of the school year. If you do not receive this report on your child's results by the end of the school year, please contact your school and ask for a copy. Study the sample results below to better understand the information on your child's testing results. Please contact your child's teacher for help in understanding your child's performance.

Your School's Performance Results

Your School's Test Scores

Below you will find information on the passing rates at your child's school for the past two years. Look closely at the results below and notice if your school's results have improved. To better understand your child's performance at his or her school, ask your child's teacher how other students in your child's class performed on that test, and ask if there are things you can do at home to help improve your child's grades and scores on proficiency tests.

Understanding Proficiency Levels & District Results

Understanding Proficiency Levels of the 12th Grade Test

There are many ways to look at the test scores presented in this Report Card. The most important thing about the charts you've studied so far is to understand how your child is doing in comparison to students in the same grade throughout the state. The chart below is different in that it presents total student passing rates at your school for 2001 for the 12th grade proficiency test only. The proficiency levels show you whether students have fallen short, reached or exceeded the minimum performance standards set for each student taking the test. Percentage Honors level is the highest performance level students can reach in Ohio in school year 2000-2001. If the Percentage Honors level (black) is larger than the Percentage Below Proficient level (light grey), then your school is doing better for more of its students.
